New World of Work (NWoW) is pleased to offer two 21st Century Employability Skills Trainings in partnership with the East Bay Region. Trainings will be offered at Contra Costa College, and Diablo Valley College. Community college faculty and staff are encouraged to attend along with their regional partners in K-12, adult education, workforce development, and community based organizations. The trainings are best suited to practitioners who wish to incorporate employability skills curriculum in their courses or workshops delivered directly to learners. This includes, but is not limited to, CTE Faculty and Deans, Work-based Learning Coordinators, Adult Education Providers, Counselors, and High School Educators.

New World of Work offers curriculum and resources to help educators prepare students for the 21st Century workplace. The two-day training provides an overview of all 20 lesson modules, video content, data collection templates, 21st Century Skills Badging, and offers tips on facilitation strategies. The trainings are fast paced, interactive, and allow instructors time to practice through group teach-backs. Participants who complete a training will earn a non-credit Certificate for Curriculum and Instruction in New World 21st Century Skills Modules at the end of Day 2.

Registration is on a first come first served basis as spots are limited. Deadline to register for the Contra Costa College Training is March 30, 2018. Deadline to register for the Diablo Valley College Training is June 12th, 2018.
